Section 3. Content Moderation Practices (§ 22677(a)(4))

A. Existing Policies (§ 22677(a)(4)(A))

Band's policies, which include but are not limited to, Terms of Service, Activity Policy, Efforts to Protect Youth, and Reporting Infringement of Your Rights, outline what is and is not allowed when using our services or platform.

In particular, Activity Policy states in pertinent part:

“BAND is a space where people gather to share posts and images, a space to share one's thoughts and information, and a space to share stories about daily life and interests. BAND, a space for communication, dedicates itself to helping each individual to connect easily with various communities. We also ponder the value necessary for users to continue with enjoyable and beneficial meetings with others.

BAND believes that the most important part of communication between members is a space where diversity is respected and a safe environment is maintained to gain the trust of our users based on the foundation of consideration for one another. BAND wants users to freely express their opinions on BAND, and supports freedom of expression. However, freedom of expression does not include the sharing of harmful content. We believe that finding a means of balance between the two is the way to improve our services as well as to maintain an enjoyable BAND life.

In order to maintain a space founded on trust and consideration, BAND gathers necessities and informs users of them through an activity policy and the application of this policy on BAND. BAND's activity policy is continuously revised and improved through constant consideration, and we will strive to include the necessary principles in order to create a pleasant service.”

B. Content Moderation Systems (§ 22677(a)(4)(B))

System monitoring and monitoring-related technology:

BAND operates a system that automatically moderates harmful content to quickly detect and block a wide range of such content. System automated moderation refers to building data within the BAND service based on the disciplinary outcome of user reports, and the system detecting and processing problematic content (text, image/video, URL, etc.) according to such data. Its mechanism involves the system to handle the entire process, from filtering the target content to taking disciplinary action, or the system to detect potentially harmful content and deliver them to the monitoring specialist, who conducts additional in-depth review of whether disciplinary action is needed and decides the final processing method. To quickly eliminate detrimental content shared in the service and prevent any additional harm caused by the proliferation of such content, system filtering is applied to every content registered in the entire BAND, from public to private BANDs.

C. Response to Users (§ 22677(a)(4)(C))

How user reports are currently handled:

Providing a clean and pleasant service that protects users from uncomfortable materials, such as spam and harmful content, is essential for a safe community activity. Reporting features are everywhere in the BAND service to quickly block any uncomfortable content. Users can report through all the key features provided by BAND, including posts, comments, images/photos, chat messages, attachments, and BAND covers, and reports are immediately submitted to the BAND service. Users whose cumulative number of reports exceeds a certain amount are automatically concealed and protected from appearing to those suspected of violating the terms of service. However, not all reported cases are sanctioned. Whether to take disciplinary action and the disciplinary method are determined in accordance with the service policy details. If a content is disciplined, it is either hidden or deleted. If an active BAND itself is subject to disciplinary measures, its search exposure is restricted or its access is limited and closed. Those who registered a problematic content or operated a problematic BAND may face disciplinary actions ranging from a simple warning to restriction on content generation and service use, which may last at least one day or permanently. When a content or user is disciplined, the user associated with the disciplinary action is informed of its details, period, and reason immediately upon implementation.

D. Removals (§ 22677(a)(4)(D))

Current measures against each subject of disciplinary action:

The BAND service offers features to create groups (individual BANDs), upload posts/comments/images/attachments within individual groups, and send chat messages in individual BANDs. Any content that violates the terms of service and activity policy (posts/comments/images/attachments/chat messages) is concealed or deleted depending on the reason for and level of disciplinary action. Users who registered problematic content face different discipline levels depending on the severity of the content or frequency of the disciplinary action—they may be restricted from creating content for a certain period of time (1 day, 3 days, 7 days) or using the service for a certain period of time (7 days, 30 days, permanently). If a group itself is found to be harmful, it is restricted from being identified and publicly exposed in search results or access restricted for a set period to block access to its content depending on the severity level before finally closing the BAND.

E. Terms of Service Availability (§ 22677(a)(4)(E))

Languages of the service UX and terms of service:

The languages in which the service UX and the terms of service are the same are English, Korean, Japanese, and Chinese. Furthermore, while the default language of the terms of service is offered in English, the service UX is available in specific languages, including Spanish, Indonesian, and Thai.

Section 4. Content Moderation Metrics (§ 22677(a)(5))

Annex B: BAND's Activity Policy

BAND is a space where people gather to share posts and images, a space to share one's thoughts and information, and a space to share stories about daily life and interests. BAND, a space for communication, dedicates itself to helping each individual to connect easily with various communities. We also ponder the value necessary for users to continue with enjoyable and beneficial meetings with others.

BAND believes that the most important part of communication between members is a space where diversity is respected and a safe environment is maintained to gain the trust of our users based on the foundation of consideration for one another. BAND wants users to freely express their opinions on BAND, and supports freedom of expression. However, freedom of expression does not include the sharing of harmful content. We believe that finding a means of balance between the two is the way to improve our services as well as to maintain an enjoyable BAND life.

In order to maintain a space founded on trust and consideration, BAND gathers necessities and informs users of them through an activity policy and the application of this policy on BAND. BAND's activity policy is continuously revised and improved through constant consideration, and we will strive to include the necessary principles in order to create a pleasant service.

BAND, where diversity is respected

- BAND is autonomously managed through an admin.

Creating a BAND means to create a space not only for family, friends, and close acquaintances, but also a space for communication between members who share similar interests. The person who creates a BAND becomes the admin, and BAND can be managed in different ways in accordance with each admin's selected options. Unlike ordinary members, the admin has the authority to control the BAND in general, and co-admins can delete posts/comments, withdraw members, and manage other administrative matters for BAND management. The scope of authority that co-admins have or the number of co-admins may change depending on the admin's designations. To the extent that it is important to manage and take responsibility for BAND as admins and co-admins, we ask that you properly exercise your authority to satisfy the characteristics of the participating members and of BAND.

With such authority held by the admin, they must also be prudent with their adminship. If an admin can no longer use BAND due to inevitable circumstances or death, the BAND service allows for the direct authorization of an admin. In the event that an admin has passed away, if the death certificate is sent to us the admin's authority can be appointed after confirmation. In the event that an admin has not logged into the service for a long time and there is no record of a log in (3 months for a BAND with co-admins, 1 month for a BAND with one admin. However, if the leader of the School Band, where the majority of members are children or adolescents, is involved in a sexual crime, regardless of the presence of a co-leader, the leader position can be delegated if the position remains vacant for one month or longer.), one new admin will be selected after collection of the BAND members' opinions. If it is determined that there are issues pertaining to the activities or history of the BAND member who wishes to be authorized, the request for the admin authorization may be rejected.

- There are different BAND types depending on degree of openness and management type.

BAND supports members to enable management through different scopes of display, number of members, management type, membership terms, and more. If a BAND has a clear purpose and a form that fits the purpose, all participating members on BAND can have a pleasant BAND experience.

Although there are different ways that a BAND can be managed, there are also matters that require caution. A member who has not joined a BAND that is made public can see posts and leave emoticons. BAND and its content can be exposed through BAND searches and Naver searches. In the event that BAND is made public, it can receive many new members, gain more posts about content, and become more active, but if open display of BAND content is unwanted, special attention must be given in selecting from the viewing options. If the BAND configuration is set to public and membership is allowed only with the admin's approval, this will prevent problems that may arise with unknown members joining the BAND. If the public BAND's name and cover are made public, the content is only available to view after one has become a member. If a BAND is private, it will not show up on search results and one can become a member only if invited by the BAND. If there are more than five thousand members on a BAND, whether it is a public BAND or private, making changes to the BAND name and introduction will be limited. If a BAND's name or introduction must be changed for a BAND with over five thousand members, a request must be made to the BAND service, and the desired BAND name/introduction will be accepted for review for one change in a six-month period.

There is a BAND option that allows users to be co-admins. This applies to official BANDS such as alumni BANDS, class BANDS, student parent BANDS, and kindergarten BANDS that can be found through My Class/Alumni/Student Parent BAND searches. Co-admins of these BANDS are given the authority to manage posts and members while also taking on the responsibility of remaining active on the BAND. If one is a co-admin but cannot remain active, another member can be authorized through the co-admin authorization function. If there are complaints from the majority of members about the co-admin, the co-admin's authority may be withdrawn without prior notice, and further options will be given to a BAND where the authorization of a co-admin has been withdrawn.

In the case of a BAND with active business transactions, the duty of managing the operation of posts pertaining to business transactions will be given to the admin, and the admin will be given the responsibility to observe the relevant laws. If the admin does not faithfully observe the BAND activity policy or consumer protection regulations related to mail orders, activities of the member performing the sales activity and the admin may be sanctioned. For business transactions or group purchases for profit, the seller information (store name, representative name, address, phone number, e-mail address, corporate registration number, terms and conditions) must be posted on the BAND announcements or on the sales post for all members to check at any time. If conflict between the mail order seller and consumer arises, the consumer can use the damage relief request agent channel provided by BAND to report damages to the organization for Consumer Damage and Dispute Resolution, and personal information of the mail order seller can be requested by the Fair Trade Commission or other related organizations in accordance with the regulations for consumer protection to resolve the conflict of BAND services. The detailed procedure for the acting damage relief request will be announced by BAND within the scope of regulations pertaining to the consumer protection of electronic commerce.

- Free management of storage methods and storage periods.

BAND supports the period and capacity options for chats, files, and storage space for each BAND. The storage period for chats can be set through each BAND setting and chat room settings, and the settings can be used to delete or confirm chats. To allow members to check chat content after switching devices or reinstalling the app, set the storage period to one year. If the option is set so that the chatting periods cannot be saved, the content will immediately be deleted (it may require a certain period for the change to be applied in the entire system) and all following chats will not be saved. However, if the Admin/Co-Admins enabled the "Save All Chat History" setting in the Band, you will need to provide consent regarding the setting to chat in the Band. Chat history will be stored on the server for 1 year. Upon enabling the feature, the Admin and Co-Admins can download chats sent within a one-year timeframe. (excludes chats deleted by sender and reported or hidden chats) You can withdraw your consent at anytime, but if you do so, you will no longer be able to chat in the Band.

Settings for large files can also be set to be saved or deleted after a specific period. BANDS with active file sharing can help members share and save materials through specific settings related to saving files. The storage space setting for each BAND can be managed to prevent issues with not being able to restore deleted materials shared by members. All storage spaces on BAND will be provided depending on the level of activities on BAND.

- BAND opposes the spread of misinformation and hate speech of specific individuals or classes

BAND is a small society made up of diverse people. Because it is a shared space, it is important to show consideration for others and to be protected from imprudent exclusion of a specific group. Any activity on BAND that degrades an ethnic group, religion, gender, sexual preference, disability, or disease or induces the exclusion of related groups will be determined an act of hatred. In the case that such actions are discovered on BAND, the related content may be deleted and the service activities of the concerned member(s) may be sanctioned.

In the process of a conflict between individuals or between individuals and groups, a specific individual or specific group may become the subject of public slander. To receive protection from such a case, users can access the rights violation reporting channel. The member reported will be prohibited from writing posts following the requested procedure regarding the violation of rights, and the user may receive additional protection regarding individual rights until a final decision is made by the related organization.

However, such protections may be restricted in accordance with the policy regulations of the Korea Internet Self-Governance Organization (KISO) if a civil servant in political service, public official, the press, etc. requests temporary measures for defamation and other violations of rights.

Safe BAND

- BAND does not allow false member information or access information.

Activities with a fake account or other unusual actions such as access attempted through a mechanical device become potentially dangerous factors to the service. Activities conducted through false information or of anything related to mechanical activities will not be permitted, and BAND strives to protect the service from such acts.

When joining BAND, one must enter accurate information. Discovery of false information or fraud may lead to restrictions in service use. Accounts with temporary phone numbers or e-mails that are not means for continuous contact may be determined unusual and service may be restricted. We ask that users take caution when signing up or connecting accounts. Mechanical joining and log-ins that can obstruct service quality and safety will also be limited.

If the items entered at sign-up have changed, the user profile must immediately be revised to reflect the appropriate changes. Changes in mobile phone number or device require a registration of a connecting account for continual use of BAND after said changes. If the changes are not updated and cases of loss occur, BAND will not be held responsible for such losses.

- We keep a report channel open for inappropriate content.

The foundation of a safe BAND must be a clean and pleasant service that protects users from spam, harmful topics, and inappropriate content. In order to quickly eliminate inappropriate content, BAND offers report functions throughout its services. If you discover content or BANDs that present a problem, you can use the report function to directly make a report to the BAND service. The reported content will be immediately processed by the BAND service, and an automatic blinding process will be enforced to protect users from anything that may be harmful. However, not all content that is reported is sanctioned, and please note that the matter and method of disciplinary action are determined in accordance with the policies of the BAND service.

- We attempt to create an evolved system filtering environment that filters out harmful content.

In addition to the reporting service, BAND also blocks problematic content and member activity through an automatic detection system. The automatic detection system is founded on the results of disciplinary actions taken from past reports by users and uses big data constructed within the BAND service to detect and dispose of such content. The system an AI method that performs the entire process from filtering problematic content and enforcing disciplinary action throughout the system, and it recommends additional review for potential problematic targets. Harmful content shared in the system is quickly removed, and to prevent additional problems the system filtering applies to all registered content on BAND, whether the BAND is public or private.

- Content is managed from all angles and resolved in phases.

Basically, all operational responsibilities pertaining to individual BANDS fall on the admin. The admin and the co-admin who is granted authority by the admin can delete inappropriate content and block or force a member out of BAND. If a user's content is not appropriate according to the BAND's purposes or it is determined that certain content makes other users uncomfortable, the admin or co-admin can sanction it, and the subject and method of said sanctions will be fully made by the admin or co-admin.

In addition to the regulations on sanctions of each BAND decided by the admin, if a member acts in a way that violates the terms, activity policies, or regulations, all management responsibilities first fall on the admin. If separate measures are not taken in spite of the warning and correction request of the BAND service, the admin may be deprived of authority or be restricted from service use. If an admin cannot maintain normal activity as a result of such a case, the BAND service can withdraw the admin's authority and appoint another member in the BAND as admin.

If other content or activities that are inappropriate to the service are reported or discovered in spite of the admin or co-admin's management, the service administrator can directly sanction it. Content that is sanctioned by the service include pornography, illegal content, and others that need to be controlled by legal or social standards. If an advertisement makes BAND users uncomfortable, the user who posted the advertisement and the BAND that allowed the posting will be subject to disciplinary action in accordance with 'Article 50.7 of the Act on Promotion of Information and Communications Network Utilization and Information Protection, Etc.' Content containing pornography, illegal content, and advertisements that are sanctioned will be blocked out or deleted, face phased restrictions in service use, be subject to restricted searching on BAND, or be shut down.

Because BAND is a space used by people of all ages, we work hard to block out all harmful content. The understanding and active cooperation of users is extremely crucial as well. We hope that all users will share stories that are appropriate to each BAND's personality and theme so that all members can remain active on BAND for a long time.

Standard of acts that infringe copyright

- Duplication, distribution, and the products of an individual's intellectual activity, including broadcasting material, music, books, mobile games, and cartoons, without approval from the owner intellectual property rights

- Content that contains content that incapacitates technical protection measures that the intellectual property owner has prepared to protect his/her rights, such as a sharing program that automatically generates CD keys, bugs, or hacking programs
 - Content that contains information that violates trademark rights, design rights, or other rights owned by an individual without his/her permission
- Need for interest and caution regarding personal information.

Efforts must be made by users to prevent the leakage of personal information. If others induce leakage of personal information or if users leak personal information themselves, it can lead to unfavorable results, and thus we ask that users be extremely cautious with the sharing of personal information. If leaked personal information is reported, BAND will block out the related content.

Alongside the efforts of each member, there are things that BAND admins must do to protect their personal information. An admin cannot collect or sell a member's personal information without prior consent from the member. If a member's personal information is collected in the process of operating BAND for the sales of goods or group purchases, the admin must receive clear consent from the member concerning the member's right to refuse the collection of personal information, personal information items, collection purpose, and storage period collected by the information agency. The admin will be liable for all violations of this, and in the event that related acts are discovered there may be disadvantages affecting use of the BAND.

- We securely protect accounts that have been inactive for a long period of time.

For leaders or members who have not used the BAND service for 2 years after registration, we protect their accounts to prevent exposure to security risks during the period of inactivity. As a result, some or all of the permissions granted to the member may be restricted during this protection period. The company will notify users individually through social media, email, or in-service notifications, providing an opportunity to log back into the service. Once the user successfully logs in again, they will be able to access all service features as usual.

Accounts that have been inactive for a long period often have outdated login information, such as phone numbers and email addresses, and may not have security settings properly maintained, which makes them vulnerable to security risks. Therefore, if your account remains inactive for an extended period, in order to ensure better security for your account, your personal information may be deleted through account termination.

When being withdrawn from the service, the account will be removed from the Bands it has joined. If the account owner is a leader, permissions will be automatically delegated to another member within the Band. If a Band does not have a member to assume the authority, it will be closed.
