1. Introduction

Nextdoor is the essential neighborhood network for over 100 million neighbors across 345,000 neighborhoods, offering trusted local news, real-time safety alerts, neighbor recommendations, for sale and free listings, and local events. Nextdoor connects neighbors to the people, places, and information that matter most in their local communities. In addition, local businesses, news publishers, and public agencies use Nextdoor to share important information and engage with neighbors at scale.

As described in its initial Terms of Service report dated February 6, 2026, Nextdoor's understanding is that it is not presently within the scope of "social media platform," as that term is defined at N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law § 42-1100. Nextdoor has chosen to submit this Report voluntarily, with information about our terms of service and moderation practices, to provide greater transparency to New York users.

2. Updates to Nextdoor Terms of Service

Responsive to § 42-1102(1)(b). Between February 6, 2026 and April 1, 2026 there have been no substantive changes to Nextdoor's Community Guidelines. For the purposes of transparency and continuity of reporting, Nextdoor restates its terms of service and moderation practices in this section and sections 3 and 4, below.

A. Nextdoor Community Guidelines

Responsive to § 42-1102(1)(a). Upon joining the Nextdoor platform, users agree to our Member Agreement, which includes, by reference, our Community Guidelines. The Community Guidelines determine appropriate and permitted uses – as well as prohibited uses – of Nextdoor's services.

Specifically, the Community Guidelines set out the primary guidelines for use of the Nextdoor platform, with links to further information and details about each below. Copies of each Community Guideline are also available in the Annex.

- Be respectful to your neighbors

- Do not discriminate
- Discuss important topics in the right place
- Use your true identity
- Do not engage in harmful activity

If users violate our Community Guidelines, we may remove their content, suspend, delete or deactivate their account or limit privileges, or otherwise refuse service.

For purposes of this Report, the Community Guidelines, including additional details provided for each of the primary guidelines, constitute our terms of service¹ and shall be referred to collectively as our “terms of service” hereafter. In addition to the links above, copies of the terms of service are provided in the Annex, in their form as of the end date of the reporting period.

3. Definitions of Content Categories

A. Hate speech or racism

Responsive to § 42-1102(1)(c)(i). Nextdoor’s Community Guidedline, “Do not discriminate,” defines Nextdoor’s policy of zero tolerance for discrimination and hate. A copy of this guideline is available in the Annex. Examples of violative behavior include: Showing or eliciting support for hate groups or people promoting hate; promoting hate-based conspiracy theories or misinformation; suggesting, showing, threatening, or glorifying violence; and attempting to condone or trivialize violence against others.

B. Extremism or radicalization

Responsive to § 42-1102(1)(c)(ii). Although Nextdoor’s Community Guidelines do not specifically define extremism or radicalization, extremism on Nextdoor is addressed through strict guidelines that prohibit hate and terror groups. When designating hate and terror groups, Nextdoor may reference lists compiled by organizations such as the U.S. State Department,

¹ N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law § 42-1100 defines “terms of service” as follows: “a policy or set of policies adopted by a social media company that specifies, at least, the user behavior and activities that are permitted on the internet-based service owned or operated by the social media company, and the user behavior and activities that may subject the user or an item of content to being actioned.”

Southern Poverty Law Center and the Anti-Defamation League. Nextdoor also enables Neighbors to report groups that violate Community Guidelines.

C. Disinformation or misinformation

Responsive to § 42-1102(1)(c)(iii). Nextdoor addresses disinformation and misinformation through its misinformation policy. A copy of this policy is available in the Annex. It broadly prohibits two categories of misinformation: (1) Political misinformation, which may include manipulated media, political conspiracies, and election interference; and (2) Medical misinformation, which may include anti-vaccine advice and false or misleading claims regarding public health emergencies.

D. Harassment

Responsive to § 42-1102(1)(c)(iv). Harassment is not explicitly defined as a category of prohibited content in the terms of service. However, actions that could be considered harassment may fall under several categories of Community Guidelines violations. These include:

- Disrespectful behavior: This includes being uncivil or unkind, which is against the guideline of maintaining civil conversations.
- Discrimination: Any form of racism, sexism, homophobia, or other discriminatory behavior is prohibited.
- Public shaming: This involves posting content that aims to shame or embarrass someone publicly, and is against the guideline of maintaining civil conversations.
- Violation of privacy: Sharing private information without consent is not allowed, and is against the guideline prohibiting harmful activity.

E. Foreign political interference

Responsive to § 42-1102(1)(c)(v). Nextdoor's terms of service do not define foreign political interference. However, Nextdoor's misinformation policy addresses such issues by prohibiting false or misleading information that could interfere with elections or incite violence. Furthermore, Nextdoor's guidelines relating to elections are designed to support a fair and safe elections process.

4. Content Moderation Practices

A. Content Moderation Practices and Responding to Violations of Terms of Service

Responsive to § 42-1102(1)(d)(i)-(iv). Nextdoor's content moderation practices for the reporting period are described in the Nextdoor Transparency Report 2025, as provided below,² including our use of automated systems and human review in content moderation, and how we remove content or users, or otherwise respond to, violations of the terms of service.

Moderation at Nextdoor: Keeping conversations constructive and neighborly

Our mission is to make every neighborhood feel like home by connecting neighbors to the local gems around them — people, places, and information. Every day, neighbors come to Nextdoor to stay in the know, ask questions, share what they see on their block, and help one another. To keep those conversations constructive and trustworthy, we rely on our Community Guidelines alongside established internal practices and integrated technologies. These systems help neighbors talk to each other in ways that feel safe, respectful, and grounded in real life.

We consider three main categories of content that violate our Community Guidelines:

1. Hurtful. Content that neighbors consider uncivil, such as insults, rudeness, or name-calling.
2. Harmful. Content that is illegal, fraudulent, or unsafe, such as violence, graphic images, or discrimination.
3. Other. Non-local content, spam, or content posted in error.

With these categories in mind, we employ a three-tiered moderation framework to maintain a positive and productive environment:

² In addition to excerpts provided in this Report, the full Nextdoor Transparency Report 2025 is available at <https://help.nextdoor.com/s/article/Nextdoor-Transparency-Report-2025>. This transparency report was published on March 9, 2026, after Nextdoor's submission of its initial terms of service report, which references Nextdoor's 2024 Transparency Report in describing Nextdoor's content moderation practices. These transparency reports may at various points differ in their precise articulations of Nextdoor's terms of service and content moderation practices. Such differences are largely attributable to the different reporting period each report covers. Nextdoor reiterates that, since its initial terms of service report, no substantive changes have been made to its terms of service.

1. Automation. AI and automated solutions proactively detect and flag potentially Harmful, Hurtful, or other violative content, and, in some cases, automatically remove or limit this content.
2. Community. Neighbors have tools to flag content that may be Harmful or Hurtful, or otherwise violate our Community Guidelines. Neighbors also volunteer to be community Leads and Reviewers, to review reports on everyday conversations using in-product tools and local context.
3. Neighborhood Operations Team. The Neighborhood Operations team is Nextdoor's internal team that handles reports of specific types of content requiring professional, consistent enforcement, as well as account-level concerns. To accomplish this, the Neighborhood Operations team incorporates additional training and internal quality checks.

This section explains the moderation framework as it operated in 2025: how neighbors and technology flag issues, how content is reviewed, and how we approach local news, alerts, and other third-party content. [...]

When neighbors flag a concern

Neighbors are often best positioned to notice issues with platform content, and they are empowered with tools to act. Neighbor reports form the starting point for most decisions about whether problematic content stays up, is limited, or is removed.

When a neighbor notices an issue, such as an inappropriate post or comment, or something that doesn't feel right in a conversation, they can quickly flag it for review. The option to flag content is readily available in almost any post or comment. When reporting content, the neighbor also chooses the reason that best fits what they're seeing — such as non-local content, incivility, or spam — and this helps us route the concern to the appropriate reviewer and apply the appropriate standard.

After content is flagged, it is reviewed by the people best suited to evaluate it.

- Volunteer Community Leads and Reviewers typically review reports of Hurtful content that arise in day-to-day conversations, using in-product tools and local context to vote on whether or not the flagged content fits within our Community Guidelines.
- Neighborhood Operations team members review reports of certain types of Harmful content and manage all account violations.

If a decision is made to limit or remove content, its author is informed, along with a short explanation of the relevant Community Guideline. In certain cases involving Hurtful content, the author is given an opportunity to edit their content to be consistent with the Community Guidelines. In most cases, the neighbor who flagged the content for review will see that a review took place and whether action was taken.

If either the author or reporter disagree with the outcome — because their content was taken down or something they reported stayed up — they can submit an appeal, which triggers a fresh review that can uphold or reverse the original decision.

How automation and AI support healthy conversations

Neighbors should feel confident that when they open Nextdoor, they'll see information that's useful, relevant, and safe. To make that possible at scale, we pair human judgment with automation and AI. These tools don't replace people; they help us spot potential issues earlier, reduce exposure to Harmful, Hurtful, and other content that violates our Community Guidelines, and make it easier for neighbors to keep conversations on track.

- Spotting potential issues faster. We use machine-learning models and heuristic-based rules to detect patterns and signals of content likely to violate our Community Guidelines. When detected, these tools can generate reports or route content for review — by community Leads or Reviewers or our Neighborhood Operations team — and take appropriate actions while that review is performed. While most concerns still start with neighbors flagging posts and comments themselves, automation helps catch Harmful, Hurtful, and other violative content and speed up review.
- Filtering highly toxic content. To limit exposure to highly toxic material, such as incendiary or inflammatory language or personal attacks, we combine our own systems with third-party tools, including Google's Perspective API, to identify posts and comments that are likely to be extremely hostile or abusive. These tools enable us to reduce how prominently such content appears to neighbors, while still allowing for real, though sometimes difficult, conversations. In severe cases, posts or comments may be automatically removed.

Throughout, people remain at the center of how we handle concerns. Most flagged content is still reviewed by Leads, Reviewers, or the Neighborhood Operations team, and appeals provide a clear way for neighbors who are affected by moderation decisions to challenge decisions they disagree with.

Helping conversations stay constructive from the start

Most conversations on Nextdoor go well on their own. But for some topics — especially those tied to safety, politics, or high-emotion subjects — conversations may heat up quickly. To encourage productive dialogue, we've built practical, AI-powered tools that analyze draft posts and comments, flag language that may be Hurtful or Harmful, and encourage neighbors to pause, reframe, and stay focused on continuing conversations, rather than shutting them down.

One example of our use of “pause moments,” which are inserted into high-emotion or heated situations, is our Constructive Conversations Reminder. It provides a short, in-product message encouraging neighbors to focus on the issue rather than the person, to avoid assumptions and name-calling, or to consider whether their comment will keep the discussion constructive. Similarly, our Kindness Reminder uses machine learning trained on previously flagged content to detect potentially hurtful language before a post or comment goes live. The Kindness Reminder then surfaces a prompt that links to the Community Guidelines and gives the author a moment to edit, reconsider, or refrain from posting altogether.

Many neighbors choose to edit or withhold content after seeing these prompts, which reduces the number of conflicts that ever need formal review.

News, alerts, and third-party content

Neighbors rely on local news, alerts, and other third-party content on Nextdoor to stay informed about what’s happening nearby, from city decisions and road closures to safety updates and emergency alerts. These posts, referred to as publisher or third-party content, must meet the same Community Guidelines as neighbor content. In addition, our Publisher Policy sets expectations for publisher content, including requirements related to sourcing, accuracy, and clear labeling of opinion, parody, and satire. If there are issues with publisher or third-party content, neighbors can report them in the same way as any other content, using a simple reporting process that allows them to flag potential misinformation concerns, safety risks, or other issues in just a few taps or clicks.

When local publisher content, public agency posts, or other content from third-party partners is reported, the report is reviewed by our Neighborhood Operations team, who apply our Community Guidelines and Publisher Policy to help ensure content and conversations remain civil and productive. These reviews focus on minimizing misinformation, discrimination, and incomplete or outdated safety-critical information, among other concerns. If our Neighborhood Operations team determines that publisher or third-party content violates our policies, the content can be removed, or its distribution may be reduced. In some cases, it may be appropriate to limit the publisher’s or third party’s ability to post.

Comments on news articles, alerts, or other third-party content can also be reported in the same way as comments on neighbors’ posts. These reports may be reviewed by community Leads and Reviewers or the Neighborhood Operations team, who apply the Community Guidelines and take appropriate action consistent with our standard moderation processes.

Content Information

Responsive to § 42-1102(1)(e). Nextdoor tracks information on the types of content that are reported and removed. Due to its community-based approach described above, metrics do not precisely conform to the categories or content types described in section 42-1102(1)(e). In the interest of transparency, Nextdoor provides the following information regarding content moderation in Q4 of 2025.

Community Guidelines

Hi neighbor. We're glad you're here.

We all play a part in making Nextdoor a welcoming, safe place for everyone. These guidelines are designed to help foster a neighborhood where every neighbor feels at home.

Select a guideline to learn more and see what is—and isn't—allowed on Nextdoor.

1. Be respectful to your neighbors

Remember that you're interacting with real people - people who might live nearby that you may see out and about in your neighborhood. Be civil and constructive, and avoid personal attacks, trolling, and public shaming.

2. Do not discriminate

All neighbors are welcome on Nextdoor. We have a zero-tolerance policy for content promoting discrimination, hatred, or violence against individuals or groups based on characteristics such as race, ethnicity, origin, religion, disability, gender, sexual orientation, or age.

3. Discuss important topics in the right place

Nextdoor's primary purpose is to help neighbors connect with what's happening locally. For broader discussions, like national or international topics, connect with interested neighbors using our Groups feature.

4. Use your true identity

Trust is at the heart of every community. We ask everyone to use their real name and identity, thus helping neighbors know exactly who's part of the conversation.

5. Do not engage in harmful activity

Nextdoor prohibits activity that could harm others—whether it's physical harm, scams, or anything putting neighbors at risk.

Moderation and enforcement

Neighbors play a key role in helping to keep our community a positive place. If you see something that goes against these guidelines, please use the reporting options below:

- Report a post
- Report a neighbor

Before reporting, take a moment to check that the content truly violates these guidelines—not just that you personally disagree with the opinion being shared. Thoughtful reporting helps us focus on keeping Nextdoor safe for all neighbors. Misusing the report feature may affect your access to Nextdoor.

Be respectful to your neighbors

[Note icon]

- The Community Guidelines outline what is—and isn't—allowed on Nextdoor.
- If you see a post or comment that you believe violates the guidelines, you can report it for review. Do not report posts just because you disagree with them.
- Violating the Community Guidelines may lead to removal of your content or restricted access to Nextdoor.

On Nextdoor, your neighbors are real people—living right down the street or around the block. The way we speak with each other shapes our communities. When conversations stay civil and constructive, everyone benefits.

[Change to call out banner] What's in this article:

- Civil conversations
- Public shaming

Civil conversations

Nextdoor is a place for open conversations about what matters in your neighborhood. It's okay to disagree, but always keep it respectful and focus on ideas—not personal attacks. This is how we build stronger communities together.

Example behaviors	Allowed?
Attacking, berating, bullying, belittling, insulting, harassing, threatening, trolling, or swearing at others or their views, even if you strongly disagree. This includes communication within a group or direct message and any communication (including email) directed toward Nextdoor employees, vendors, or agents.
Stating your opinion or disagreeing in a civil and respectful manner
Posting complaints about moderation (such as reported, hidden, or removed content) in the main feed
Using direct messages or meeting in person to resolve personal disputes amicably
Continuing to contact a neighbor after they've asked you to stop

[CALLOUT] Navigating a difficult conversation? See our tips for respectful disagreement.

Public shaming

Public shaming has no place on Nextdoor. Whether it's directly or indirectly targeting a neighbor, a public figure, or the victim of a crime, shaming others is harmful and uncivil.

IMPORTANT

- If you're concerned about illegal activity, contact your local law enforcement or other appropriate agency.
- Before posting, consider how your words might affect those you're posting about, who may also be neighbors on Nextdoor.
- We may remove a post if contacted by an involved party. This includes parents/guardians of minors.

Example behaviors	Allowed?
Posting about a safety concern in your neighborhood when you do not know the person involved or how to contact them, provided that you are civil and respectful	✓
Writing disparagingly about the victim of a crime or suggesting they are to blame	✗
Posting a negative review of a service provider as long as it's civil and describes your own personal experience	✓
Posting a negative review of a service provider that includes personal attacks, public shaming, libel or name calling	✗
Geo-tagging someone's home location without their knowledge or permission for the purposes of humiliation, shaming, or complaining	✗

Do not discriminate

Zero tolerance for discrimination and hate

We do not tolerate racism, discrimination, or hate speech in any form on Nextdoor. Neighbors come from every background—everyone deserves respect and safety.

Prohibited behaviors
Racism, discrimination, or insults
Discriminating against, threatening, or insulting others (including public figures) based on their membership in a protected or marginalized group. Protected and marginalized groups include: People grouped together based on their actual or perceived race, color, ethnicity, age, immigration status, national origin, religion or faith, sex or gender identity, sexual orientation, housing or socio-economic status, disability or medical condition, weight or size, and veteran status.

Assuming that someone is suspicious or engaged in criminal activity because of their race or ethnicity. (Learn more about preventing racial profiling .)	✗
Using negative stereotypes, caricatures, or generalizations about a group—including offensive imagery or memes.	✗
Using slurs, profanity, derogatory racial terms, or other language that reduces an individual's humanity. This includes the use of the dehumanizing terms, "illegals," "illegal aliens," or "aliens" to refer to non-citizens, the use of racial code words (e.g., "Thug" or "Oriental"), as well as the use of derogatory language to refer to people who have a criminal history (e.g., "scum" or "animals").	✗
Denying an individual's gender identity or sexual orientation, or promoting support for conversion therapy and related programs.	✗
Mocking or attacking the beliefs, sacred symbols, movements, or institutions of marginalized or protected groups	✗
Hate speech, violence, or threats
Showing or eliciting support for hate groups or people promoting hate.	✗
Promoting hate-based conspiracy theories or misinformation (e.g., Holocaust denial or "Antifa is invading the suburbs")	✗
Suggesting, showing, threatening, or glorifying violence — even as a joke— against anyone.	✗
Attempting to condone or trivialize violence against others, even inadvertently (e.g., "Yeah, but that person is a criminal").	✗

If you see a post or comment that violates these standards, report it so we can review and take action.

Support for equality

Racial equality

Racism has no place at Nextdoor. We stand with neighbors advocating for racial justice and speaking out against hate. Discussions in support of racial equality—such as Black Lives Matter, Stop Asian Hate, and other civil rights movements—are welcome on Nextdoor as long as they follow the Community Guidelines.

It's okay to disagree on policy or tactics, but posts or comments meant to undermine core messages of equality are not allowed. Specifically:

- “All Lives Matter” is prohibited when used to dismiss or diminish movements for racial equality.
- “Blue Lives Matter” is allowed when honoring, celebrating, or thanking police for their work in the community—but prohibited when used to diminish racial equality or the Black Lives Matter movement.
- “White Lives Matter” is prohibited, as this phrase is most commonly associated with white supremacist groups. See our Hate & Terror Groups policy for more information.

LGBTQIA+ equality

Nextdoor is for all neighbors—regardless of gender or sexual orientation. LGBTQIA+ stands for Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, Queer or Questioning, Intersex, and Asexual, and includes a spectrum of identities and experiences. Homophobia, biphobia, transphobia, or any mistreatment based on identity are strictly prohibited.

We welcome conversations and celebrations of LGBTQIA+ issues across Nextdoor, as long as they follow our Community Guidelines.

Our commitment to our neighbors

Our goal is to make every neighbor feel welcome on Nextdoor. We leverage a combination of technology and the human judgment of our neighbors and the internal Nextdoor team to report and remove content, behavior, and individuals that discriminate or make others feel unwelcome.

Sometimes, we may not get it right. If you notice content that violates these standards, please report it. You can also appeal a moderation decision if you feel that your content was removed in error. We're committed to learning, improving, and making Nextdoor better for everyone.

By standing together and leading with respect, we build stronger, more welcoming neighborhoods—online and off.

Discuss important topics in the right place

[Note icon]

- The Community Guidelines outline what is—and isn't—allowed on Nextdoor.
- Violating the Community Guidelines may lead to removal of your content or restricted access to Nextdoor.

Nextdoor is where neighbors connect over what matters most to their local community. For important topics like non-local politics and religion, we offer Groups designed for thoughtful discussion. If you don't see an existing group on a topic you're interested in, you can start one. Conversations within Groups still need to be respectful and civil and comply with our Community Guidelines.

[Call out banner] Where to discuss non-local topics:

- Politics
- Religion
- Fundraising

Politics

Real-world change often starts locally. That's why Nextdoor keeps the main newsfeed focused on local and personal topics. Broader conversations—like national politics or global issues—belong in Groups. If you don't see an existing group on a topic you're interested in, you can start one. All discussions must follow our Community Guidelines.

Sharing politics, causes, and civic events

What can neighbors share?	Allowed in the main feed?	Allowed in Groups?
Sharing local events, or peaceful rallies and protests that you support or plan to attend	✓	✓
Sharing how a societal issue affects or has personally impacted you or your community. See our policies on upholding equality	✓	✓
Stating why you support a local cause or a local, state, or district candidate. Note: Local candidates may introduce themselves in the main feed, but may not campaign or share ongoing campaign updates there. See our Elections FAQ .	✓	✓
Sharing ways neighbors can get involved in local causes or civic action, like voting or volunteering	✓	✓
Sharing or reposting campaign updates, including, but not limited to: endorsement announcements, fundraising or merchandise updates, or requests for donations or assistance	✗	✓
Sharing non-local content about national politics, federal policy, or international issues	✗	✓

Religion

We know religion is meaningful for many and sensitive for others. To respect all neighbors, religious discussions should take place in neighbor-created Groups.

Fundraising

Fundraising should focus on causes directly connected to your neighborhood. Fundraisers for non-local causes, people outside of your community, or personal fundraising are not permitted.

Where you can fundraise
Type of fundraising	Main newsfeed	Groups
School fundraisers, including links to school or teacher wishlists	✓	✓
Community youth organizations	✓	✓
Local pet rescue, arts organizations, fundraising events, food banks, and charity walks/runs	✓	✓
Local disaster relief or emergency assistance for neighbors, including food assistance	✓	✓
Kids' bake sales, lemonade stands, and similar youth efforts	✓	✓
Requesting donations for non-local causes	✗	✓
Requesting monetary donations for personal expenses or business needs. This includes the needs of household members and pets.	✗	✓
Requesting donations for political candidates	✗	✓

Use your true identity

[Callout banner]:

- The Community Guidelines outline what is—and isn't—allowed on Nextdoor.
- Violating the Community Guidelines may lead to removal of your content or restricted access to Nextdoor.

Every neighbor on Nextdoor is required to use their true identity, including their real name and address. Learn more:

- Real names
- Real addresses
- Your profile and photo

Real names

Nextdoor's Member Agreement requires that every neighbor use their full, real name when joining Nextdoor. By real name, we mean the first name that you use when introducing yourself to neighbors, friends, and colleagues and your legal last name.

You can decide what neighbors can see your full name in privacy settings.

	Allowed?
Using the name of your business or organization as your personal account name. Create or claim a business page instead.
Including professional titles or educational degrees in your name. This information can be added to your bio .
Adding emoji(s) to your name
Using a nickname, initials, or shortened version of your first name if that's how you're known in the community. For example, using DJ Brown instead of Donna Jo Brown. You can also include a nickname in quotes, like Donna "JoJo" Brown.

Real addresses

Nextdoor is a safe, online space for neighborhood conversation—the kind you'd have in person. To keep it that way, we require all neighbors to verify their address. See how to join at the address of a second home you own.

	Allowed?
Registering a personal profile at a business or organizational address
Registering a personal profile at an address other than your own
Registering a personal profile at the address of a home you rent or own.
Registering using a P.O. Box or other mailing address
Registering at an address in a neighborhood you are considering moving to Registering at the address of a second home you own. See our article on joining at a second address
Registering at the address of rental properties you own

Your profile and photos

Having a real profile photo helps your neighbors recognize you when they see you around the neighborhood. Profile fields are optional—share only what you’re comfortable with. You won’t be removed for leaving them blank, but adding details helps neighbors feel more connected.

	Allowed?
Using an alternative, representative profile photo as long as it is appropriate for a general audience	✓
Not using a profile photo	✓
Not using a cover photo	✓
Not completing your profile, or only adding limited information	✓
Using a profile or cover photo that is inappropriate, or offensive.	✗
Using a profile or cover photo that belongs to someone else	✗
Using a profile photo that is promotional	✗

Appropriately report suspicious activity

Keeping the neighborhood safe is important to our neighbors. Always call local authorities first to report a safety concern. Learn more about how to communicate about crime in your neighborhood.

Nextdoor takes a strong stand against racial profiling. We expressly prohibit posts that assume someone is suspicious because of their race or ethnicity, as well as messages with vague descriptions that cast suspicion over an entire race or ethnicity. Such messages are ineffective and harm rather than help communities. Learn more about the root causes of racial profiling, what Nextdoor is doing to prevent it, and how you can help.

	Allowed?
Posting about local crime or safety concerns, including specific details like unique features and full clothing descriptions. This helps keep neighbors safe and avoids unfair suspicion Learn why full descriptions are important	✓
Posting that someone is suspicious because of their race or ethnicity	✗

Posting descriptions of individuals that are so vague as to cast suspicion over an entire race or ethnicity	✗
Identifying a suspect by race and sex alone (including in the subject line of a post).	✗

No threats to the safety of others

If we're alerted to an imminent safety risk, Nextdoor may report it to the appropriate authorities. However, contacting Nextdoor is not a substitute for calling 911 or local emergency services. If you believe someone's safety is at risk, please contact authorities immediately.

	Allowed?
Threatening someone, their family or their pet's safety	✗
Posting comments that encourage violence against others	✗
Threatening someone's privacy or security	✗

No fraud, spam, or prohibited goods or services

Fraudulent content and phishing are not permitted. To help keep everyone safe, we don't allow the sale or trade of age-restricted or regulated items. See our list of prohibited goods and services. If you believe something illegal is being sold, please contact local authorities and ask them to notify us if action is needed.

	Allowed?
Posting fraudulent content that purposefully deceives or misrepresents in order to result in financial or personal gain. This includes but is not limited to incentivized posts or reviews of businesses.	✗
Posting spam, like unwanted, unsolicited, and/or repeated actions that negatively affect neighbors and the Nextdoor community. This may include but is not limited to: • Sending large amounts of direct messages to users who are not expecting them • Contacting people with unwanted content or requests • Repeatedly posting the same or similar content • Posting unoriginal/templated content with no personalization or original commentary • Posts that are grammatically incorrect, use all caps, rely on a variety of hashtags, @mentions, emojis, or contain only a link without context. • Posting more than one promotional post per week from a personal account (You may have a different policy in your area. Please review Self-Promotion Using Your Personal Account for more information.)	✗
Phishing, including any attempt to gain access to someone's account or personal information by getting them to enter or share login or other sensitive information	✗
Selling, soliciting, or offering any illegal goods or services, even if they do not explicitly appear on the prohibited list	✗

No graphic, violent, sexually explicit, or adult content

Nextdoor is for sharing trusted info, offering help, and building real-world connections. We don't allow content that promotes sexual services or anything graphic, violent, or sexually explicit. Please post thoughtfully and report anything that feels inappropriate. See our best practices for chat messages.

Posting sexually explicit or suggestive content
Sending unwanted chat messages with romantic or flirtatious intent
Posting content that is unnecessarily gruesome, gory, graphic, or violent

No violations of privacy

Respect your neighbors' privacy—don't share anyone's personal information without their permission. Our guidelines on public shaming also apply to posts about neighbors. Find out more about how we protect your information in our Privacy Policy.

	Allowed?
Sharing contact information when recommending a service. However, if you post someone's contact information and they ask for it to be removed, we may take it down.
Sharing content outside of Nextdoor by using the share button that appears on posts.

Reposting information originally posted on Nextdoor beyond the author's post visibility designation. This includes copying and pasting or sharing screenshots of content with additional neighborhoods on Nextdoor or outside of Nextdoor.
Posting the content of direct messages sent through Nextdoor without the permission of the sender.
Posting non-public legal documents.
Posting personal contact or account information, such as email addresses, credit cards, or bank information.
Posting a person's legal or medical history, unless there is a compelling public interest served by doing so.
Posting photos of people in public places. However, if a parent or guardian requests that a photo of a minor be removed from Nextdoor, we may remove it.

Misinformation

Nextdoor is committed to neighbor safety and reducing the spread of misinformation on critical topics like elections and health emergencies. If you see a post that seems false related to these topics, please report it.

- Political misinformation
 - Manipulated media
 - Political conspiracies
 - Elections
- Medical misinformation
 - Vaccines, generally
 - Health emergencies

Political misinformation

To elevate and share accurate information about political news and events, Nextdoor collaborates with non-partisan organizations like Vote.org, local government agencies, and more.

Manipulated media

- Content must not use generative AI or other technologies to intentionally mislead or manipulate. This includes altered or AI-generated images of political figures, news, or events—unless clearly labeled as parody or satire.

Political conspiracies

Nextdoor's political misinformation policy prohibits:

- False or misleading information about the cause of national or international acts of violence involving political figures
- Messages that promote or could incite violence to individuals, groups, or property

Elections

Nextdoor's election misinformation policy prohibits:

- False or misleading information that could discourage voting, prevent votes from being counted, or interfere with the election process
- Messages that incite or encourage interference with vote counting
- False or misleading claims about election results that could disrupt the democratic process
- Messages that promote or could incite violence to block the peaceful transfer of power

We will also remove known disinformation about candidates, including:

- Doctored or fake content (e.g., quotes, images, or other material) meant to make a candidate seem unfit for office
- Debunked claims about a candidate's citizenship, criminal history or activity, or personal history intended to question their eligibility or fitness for office

Nextdoor uses a mix of technology and neighbor reports to identify and remove content that violates this policy.

Medical Misinformation

Nextdoor's Community Guidelines are designed to build trust by keeping content authentic, reliable, and useful. To protect public health, we prohibit medically unsupported claims that could harm neighbors or communities, including anti-vaccine content, false cures, or misinformation about public health emergencies.

Anti-Vaccine Advice

As a commitment to neighbor safety, we prohibit misinformation about vaccines that has the potential to cause harm or threatens public safety. We rely on trusted public health resources to evaluate content that may be misinformation, including the World Health Organization \(WHO\) and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention \(CDC\).

Nextdoor prohibits false or misleading statements and conspiracy theories about vaccines that could prevent or discourage people from receiving vaccines, including claims that:

- Vaccines cause autism;
- Vaccines contain microchips;
- Vaccines cause the diseases for which they're intended to prevent;
- Vaccines contain unsafe toxins that are poisonous or harmful.

Health Emergencies

Neighbors turn to Nextdoor to lend a hand, lean on others when they need help the most and connect with local authorities that provide relevant, real-time information. Nextdoor works closely with government partners, both local and national, to share important, substantiated news and information on evolving health emergencies as well as their corresponding vaccines and treatments.

To ensure that our neighbors receive trustworthy and helpful information, Nextdoor prohibits content that perpetuates false or misleading claims and conspiracy theories about health emergencies, including their causes, cures, and prevention methods that might be harmful to neighbors and communities. Health emergencies are a dynamic situation, and we work to align any action we take with the guidelines of trusted public health officials, including the World Health Organization \(WHO\) and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention \(CDC\).

Nextdoor's misinformation policy prohibits content such as:

- False or misleading claims and conspiracy theories about COVID-19, including its causes, cures, and prevention methods;
- False or misleading information that could prevent or discourage people from receiving COVID-19 testing, treatment or COVID-19 vaccines;
- Messages that call for or could interfere with the legitimate distribution of COVID-19 testing or COVID-19 vaccines, including fraudulent information around the distribution, safety or efficacy of vaccinations.
